September is here, and it's the unofficial reset button. 🍂

Summer schedules are winding down, routines are getting back to normal, and if your skin is feeling a little different after months of sun, heat, travel, and pool days... you're definitely not alone.

This month is the perfect time to check in with your skin, get back into a routine, and start thinking ahead to the busy months coming up. And yes, we're already talking about holiday parties, family photos, and end-of-year events!

From refreshing your post-summer skin to figuring out if retinol deserves a spot in your routine, here's what we're talking about this month:

National Retinol Week

is it time to add retinol to your routine?

In honor of National Retinol Week (Sep 16-22), let's give a little love to one of skincare's most talked-about ingredients.

Retinoids can help improve the appearance of fine lines, uneven tone, texture, and breakouts while supporting healthy skin renewal. But when it comes to retinol, the right product and routine make all the difference.

If you're new to retinol, keep it simple:

- Start slowly and give your skin time to adjust
- Use it at night and keep the rest of your routine gentle + hydrating
- Wear SPF every single day
- Make sure you're using the right product and strength for your skin

Already using retinol? September is a great time to check in and make sure your routine is still giving your skin what it needs.

Holiday Events Coming Up?

now is the time to start planning

We know... it feels early. But holiday parties, family photos, weddings, work events, and travel will be here before you know it.

Have something special on your calendar? Tell us now!

Knowing your event date helps us work backward and recommend the right treatments at the right time, without trying to squeeze everything in at the last minute.

✨ Now is a great time to:

- Start a series of skin treatments for gradual results (hello, microneedling!)
- Plan injectables with plenty of time for results to settle
- Address pigmentation, texture, or other concerns you've been putting off
- Schedule your pre-event facial before calendars get busy

You bring us the date. We'll help with the plan.

Post-Summer Skin Reset

because summer may have left a few souvenirs behind

Sunshine, chlorine, travel, heat, and inconsistent routines can leave skin looking a little dull, dehydrated, or uneven by the end of summer.

1. reassess your routine

your summer products may not be exactly what your skin needs heading into fall

2. address what you're noticing

new dark spots, dryness, congestion, or texture?
don't just cover it up, let's talk about it

3. bring back professional treatments

a customomized facial, peel, or microneedling may be just what your skin needs for a fresh start

Think of it as your skin's back-to-routine moment.
